

September 16, 2007
September 3, 2007

Matthew 25: 14-30

In this gospel, the Lord stresses two themes. First we have to maximize the gifts He gave us to his glory. As Orthodox Christians, our baptism should be as Paul asserts a baptism into Christ--to His example, through the grace of the Holy Church. Our Lord states that if we waste our talents, which namely are the living witness of our faith through our life and how Christlike we are by our actions and decisions, the consequences to our salvation will be dire. Let us to His glory repay the Lord with true love and compassion first and always to Him then to our fellow man.